Brand New Book  Print on Demand .Excerpt from A Brief Sketch of the First Monitor and Its Inventor: A Paper Read Before the Buffalo Historical Society, January 5, 1874 For the paper I am to read to-night I do not claim any literary merit. It is simply a mass of facts, connected with my subject, never presented by any other person, so far as I know. I have gathered the information principally from persons connected with and participating in the acts and scenes described; and shall endeavour to give them to you to-night, in my simple way, in connection with the illustrations here for that purpose, to show you the origin of the first Monitor and her subsequent career, down to the time of her being lost by foundering off Cape Hatteras. In the progressive world at the present era, with the improvements that have been made in almost everything, and the great events that have crowded so thick and fast upon us for the past few years, there has been but little time to consider one idea, before another, often more startling than the other, has taken its place and the first is almost forgotten. This is especially true of this country. The Americans are in many respects a peculiar people; earnest, active, versatile; a moving, changing race; one sensation succeeding another in rapid succession. In no way has this been better illustrated than in the events that transpired during the late civil war. Coming upon us unexpectedly, and without preparation on the part of the North, the emergency had to be met, with an almost daily renewal of tact and invention on our part.
